HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

For the 12-month period ended June 30, 2024, the Fund underperformed its benchmark, the S&P 500 Index. Over the period, the WBI BullBear Yield 3000 ETF (the “WBI Yield”) faced several challenges that influenced its performance.

Overall, the Fund’s strategic positioning adjustments and sector allocations played a crucial role in its performance relative to the S&P 500 Index. The Fund’s underperformance was primarily due to its reduced allocation weight in mega-cap growth and technology stocks compared to the S&P 500 Index. This strategic underweight in sectors that experienced significant growth, such as technology, hampered relative performance. Additionally, notable underperformance in the U.S. Health Care, Communication Services and Materials Sectors. On the positive side, the Fund benefited from its positions in the Financials, Consumer Discretionary and Consumer Staples sectors, which provided notable contributions to relative performance. Going forward, we continue to monitor market trends and adjust our allocations to align with evolving market dynamics.

HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM SINCE INCEPTION?*

The $10,000 chart reflects a hypothetical $10,000 investment in the class of shares noted and assumes the maximum sales charge. The chart uses total return NAV performance and assumes reinvestment of dividends and capital gains. Fund expenses, including 12b-1 fees, management fees and other expenses were deducted.
